

Campus Location

Kentucky State University (KSU) is located in Frankfort, the capital city of Kentucky. Frankfort is located astride a double curve in the Kentucky River in the central portion of the state and is known for having one of the most beautiful buildings in the country. The city is located 54 miles east of Louisville and 29 miles west of Lexington. In 2009, according to the U.S. Census Bureau, Kentucky's population was 4,269,245 and Frankfort's population was 27,322.

KSU is truly unique among the state's public universities. Now well into its 125 years of educational service to Kentucky and the nation, KSU continuously seeks to become an even more vital educational entity and to achieve as a liberal studies institution that is second to none. KSU is located on 400 East Main Street, was founded in 1886. Listed on the National Register are Hume and Jackson Halls, the latter with a public art gallery. Jackson Hall is home to the Center of Excellence for the Study of African Americans, which hosts several exhibits each year.
