Page 3, Q26. Please provide comments you think necessary to improve KSU in the future

1	Kentucky State University has the potential to be a GREAT university but I believe the university as a whole has adopted a lazy and complacent mentality. In almost every office you visit employees have been there for more than 20 years and this is only a problem because many of them are resistant to change. I believe if the President would enforce change rather than trying to change everything on her own (with hopes that employees will follow suit) I believe this university can be beneficial for the students. Change is inevitable and I have two degrees from Kentucky State and I have seen more change for the worse than the better. Nevertheless, I believe KSU will accomplish all that it has set out to accomplish with the right training, leaders, and encouragement from the top down.	May 10, 2011 12:05 PM
2	The staff in the financial aid office need to be more available to students. The way the issues are resolved are very unprofessional. The financial aid officers would rather allow a student worker to run back and forth with questions rather than see a student personally. I also have had problems with the knowledge they have given out about aid for an upcoming semester. Fall 2010 I was told I had aid to enroll. I did my part and checked myself and continued to clarify I would be able to enroll and was told by my financial aid officer I was fine. Enrolled in classes, bought books, and went to class to later find out I had no aid. Which left a bill I was unable to pay. This has caused me to not enroll in graduate school. I also had issues with the registrar's office. My transcript was lost and it took 6 weeks for Ms. Benson to return calls and get back to me and clear me for graduation. I went back and forth with her for it seems forever. She was either not in the office, on sick leave, or took the day off. This led to me missing a deadline to another school for graduate school and Ms. Benson as well as Mr. Martin were aware of me wishing to leave KSU due to issues with Financial Aid Fall 2010. I feel staff need to be more professional. As a KSU graduate I felt very let down and this had a major impact on me wishing to continue my education at KSU or telling anyone else to enroll here.	Feb 25, 2011 3:16 PM
3	The customer service is horrible and needs improvement. This college has great potential, but is NOT user friendly for beginners and people needing assistance- particularly in financial aid or otherwise. I would refer friends here, but will prepare them first and let them know they will leave frustrated. Every single time I have come here to deal with financial aid (or anything not relating to just coming to class) I have left frustrated. I am not the only one that has this complaint, otherwise I would surely take the blame or think 'maybe it's me.' Just please work on being more people friendly and work on customer service. Thank you.	Jan 24, 2011 2:40 PM

9	KSU has very helpful instructors and an academic foundation that is really impressive. But these things are often overshadowed by blatantly rude and disrespectful individuals, particularly in the financial aid office and others in the ASB building. Not only this, but the employees there rarely to never answer their phones and they all take lunch breaks at the same time so that whole departments are closed at times. This lack of professionalism discourages students and aggravates them to the the point of disdain for this institution. It has been that way since I came here fall of 2006 and quite frankly those are the major disappointments of my alma mater.	Jan 6, 2011 3:04 PM
10	I have had a wonderful experience at KSU and feel that I have been properly prepared for the future.	Jan 6, 2011 2:54 PM
11	Administration needs to be a little bit more organized	Jan 6, 2011 1:46 PM
12	1. more parking! 2. pay more attention to other areas of study outside of athletics and the major degree programs such as art, instead of ignoring them completely. 3. hire people to answer phones especially in the financial aid office, you can rarely talk to an actual person, most of them have terrible attitudes about their job and seem to not care 4. hire young professionals who are ready and willing to teach and get rid of older ones who are not, teachers should be evaluated more based on their performance and dealt with accordingly	Jan 6, 2011 12:38 PM
13	pay attention to your art department	Jan 6, 2011 12:34 PM

15	I seemed to struggle each semester with my financial aid. This office never answered their phones and often times when I did physically go to them, it was as simple as a click of a computer button that solved the problem. This was quite annoying.	Jan 3, 2011 1:02 PM
16	Make sure someone is in the office during lunch hours so students are do not have to wait. Also, regulating how long lunch breaks can be. I have waited two and a half hours to speak to one person on lunch break.	Dec 20, 2010 2:04 PM

| 22 | A thorough process should be conducted before hiring professors (prior jobs, knowledge, and their teaching styles) and also services at the ASB (registration, financial aid, and cashier's office) should answer telephone calls (or hire more staff to do just that, it is very hard to reach certain departments) and respond to voice mails in a timely manner.  | Dec 14, 2010 5:40 PM  |
| 23 | Advising prior to or just after admission would have helped narrow down my focus of study. I felt I was required to have already chosen a major before entering. There was a lot of construction and office moves when I first arrived - so I understand that my experience may not have been the norm, but I wasn't given the name of my advisor until halfway through the first semester. I also was not contacted by the department, nor felt a part of it, since my decided concentration (History) had such a small student population. I changed my major to Liberal Studies/General, because of that initial confusion, the continued cancelling of classes required by my major, as well as the requirement to choose a minor. However, overall, I am satisfied and thankful to have attended such a diverse university. I have been very pleased with the quality of faculty here. Thank you! | Dec 10, 2010 11:50 AM |
| 24 | as we are on global world, KSU would be better to take care for international students, it reveals that those program will affect like increasing budget of KSU and be more global university. THANKS  | Dec 9, 2010 3:27 PM   |
